

Dear Servo Hobbyist,

Enclosed you'll find finally the promised UHU Servo Controller Rel. 3.00. I hope that everything works as well with your setup as it did in our own intense tests.

You can download the documentation package
<http://www.pyromantiker.de/servo/UHUservo300.zip>

All important information should be found there. I tried to do it in proper English, but please be clement if you find errors. It's not at all my native language....

Now I have shipped more than 500 controllers. This implies that I am unable to give personal support to all of you. Please look at www.uhu-servo.de which will grow slowly and will give you further information in English language as well. If you are able to read German texts, visit the forum "Peters CNC Ecke" at <http://5128.rapidforum.com>. Register and search for "UHU Servocontroller". You'll find some huge threads with almost all sort of helpful ideas.

I don't distribute the servo controller on a commercial base, but I have to come back on the money I have to pay for the chips, envelops and postage. Therefore I have to take at least 2 USD for each controller, 1 USD for each crystal (if ordered) and whatever the snail mail steals out of my pockets.

Every bit more is just your recognition of the work I've put in for programming the chips, burning and handling. That's what I call my "beerware philosophy". A bottle of your favorite local beer or anything else of at least this value is the minimum I should get from you for each controller. Beer is just a place holder here: I certainly can make use of almost any tools in my hobby workshop (drills, reamers, end mills, thread cutters etc.) and I am a big fan of hot sauces and hot&spicy snacks. And I love to unpack surprises... Those who surrender from cost of shipment can also send me some additional money which directly goes into my workshop piggybank.

For those who want to send me a nice surprise, I attach my address:
